Window Screen Signs

The adjoining page shows a cut of wood letters placed on fine mesh wire screen. Signs of this kind are very neat and attractive. Same are being used extensively in show windows by the modern jewelers, milliners, bankers, real estate dealers, etc. They act as a screen, but do not obscure the light.

We can furnish you with the Wood Letters, with or without the screen or frame.

Letters should be painted and gilded before attaching. After having them spaced, put a speck of LePage's glue on the back of letters when laying them on the screen. When glue has set, the sign can be laid face down and a few very small tacks put through the screen into the back of the letters to make them more secure.

Write for prices. In estimating on this kind of work, we figure on using fifty mesh brass screen, with oak frame and raised oak moulding. Frames can be made of White Wood, Mahogany or any other material desired.

Window Display Signs

Cuts on pages 30 and 31 show something modern in Window Advertising and Display Signs. These signs are made up of wood letters, gilded or finished in any color desired, attached to horizontal wires and suspended by either invisible wires or attractive chains. For more elaborate signs, the letters are mounted on a fine mesh background with a fancy or plain wood border similar to the Florist or Millinery signs shown in cut. One great advantage of these signs is that they are durable, since they are not affected by the weather like a sign lettered on glass. Moreover, they can be taken out and cleaned up, or regilded, if desired, and when the window is rearranged they can be raised or lowered to suit the contents of the window, thus making the sign a feature of the display, instead of interfering with it, as is often the case with letters gilded on the glass or with metal or enameled letters attached to the outside of the glass.

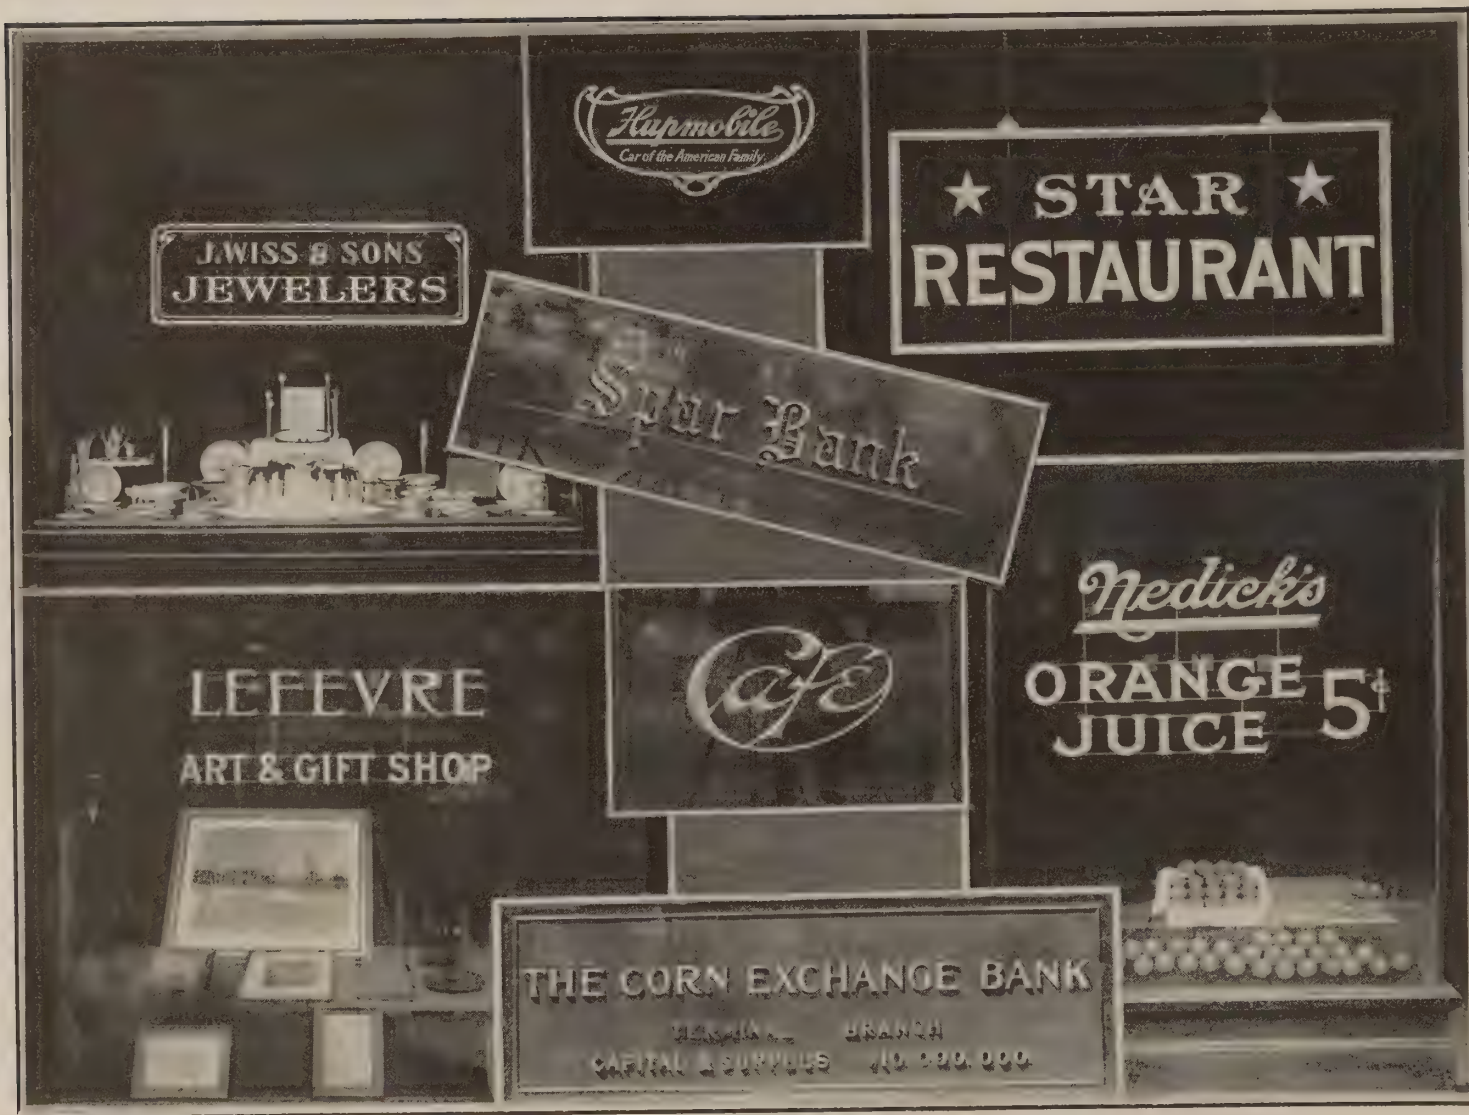

All material shipped in the white. We do no painting or gilding.

Facts Regarding the Durability of Wood Letters

J. E. Linde Paper Co. was erected in 1900. Letters 36 inches high, made from 1¼ inch White Pine. In perfect condition.

Singer Sewing Machines, erected in Elizabethport, in 1899. Letters 10 feet high, made of two thicknesses of 1¼ inch material, with a 3 inch bevel on face. Can be seen to-day for miles around, and is apparently in the best of condition.

Ballantine's Export Beer, erected in New York City, about 1902.

Murphy Varnish Company, erected in Newark, N. J., in 1907. Letters 3 and 4 feet high, made of 1¼ inch material. Also in perfect condition.

Kellner Bros., erected at 15th Street and 6th Avenue, New York City. This sign has the distinction of being the first job of large letters manufactured by Spanjer Bros. in 1897, and was examined just as this catalog went to press and found to be in apparently perfect condition.

Wood Letters, when well painted and properly attached to a board or wire sign, will last indefinitely, and as you know, the value, from an advertising standpoint, is a great deal richer than a painted or flat metal letter.

WIRE ROOF SIGNS.

A Few of the More Practical Ways of Fastening Wood Letters to Sign Boards, Brick Walls, Iron Facade, Glass, Wire, etc.

No. 1 shows the number and most appropriate place to put the finishing nails, when attaching letters to board signs.

No. 2 shows the letter fastened to the sign by use of a screw from back of the sign. In this case letters are laid on the sign and outlined, then the holes are bored and screws driven in from the back of the sign, into the letter.

No. 3 shows about the size and angle of the finishing nail. One shows the nail left flush with the face of the letter, and the other shows the nail set and the hole puttied. It is thought quite advisable to leave the nail flush with the face of the letter.

No. 4 shows the letter fastened to cement or iron facade, by small strips of galvanized iron or brass plates, same being attached to the letter by the use of screws. The other end is fastened to the wall by screw or rivet. The face of the strip is then painted to correspond with the color of the background.

No. 5 shows letters fastened to the wire by the use of ordinary blind staples. Heavy galvanized staples can be used for large letters.

No. 6 shows letter fastened to brick wall or stone with the ordinary sign hold-fast.

No. 7 shows large wood letters fastened to the wire by strips of galvanized iron. It is thought advisable to use this method when letters are very large. See pages 67 and 91 for Roof Signs.

No. 8 shows letters fastened to fine mesh screen. The letters are attached by using a little glue and a few very small black head tacks.

Nos. 9 and 10 show method of fastening large letters and wire signs to the roof.

No. 11 shows the letters fastened to the brick or stone wall by strips of angle iron. The angle iron is first attached to the wall by screws or the ordinary sign hold fasts, then the letters are placed between and attached as cut shows.

Wood Letters Attached to Glass for Numerals, Office Doors, Show Windows, etc.

Owing to the possibility of their originality, they are preferred to the glass, enamel or metal letters, and are attached to the glass in a similar manner. Letters can be made from your own designs, or from our regular stock patterns at the same price. Usual thickness, from  $\frac{1}{4}$  to  $\frac{5}{8}$  inch.

Before attaching the letters to the glass, same should be well painted, and then allowed to dry thoroughly. If they are placed on windows which are frequently washed, it is advisable to coat them with a good quality of outside or mar varnish.

Directions for Making Cement

Mix Litharge and Glycerine to a suitable putty. Apply to the letter, place same on the window, work it up and down pressing closely to exclude the air and secure a good adhesion. Press the cement out so that the edges will be protected. If it is deemed necessary, when cement is firmly set, apply the varnish.
